

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for monitoring temperature generated by an ablation apparatus on organic tissue is provided. The system comprises a an ablation apparatus operatively adapted to ablate a first side of the tissue, a temperature-sensing pad operatively adapted to sense temperature along a second side of the tissue and an output device in communication with the pad adapted to indicate the temperature of the tissue.